

American Pomological Society

Annual Business Meeting July 23, 2008
Orlando, Florida

APS holds a tropical fruit workshop at the Orlando Meeting

Many people stayed after the Tropical Fruit Workshop and the business meeting for the fruit tasting.

Tropical Fruit Taste Testing

Rob Crassweller inspects the wide assortment of tropical fruit.

Triumphant fruit researcher, and former APS President, Dr. Essie Fallahi of the University of Idaho returns from the hunt.

Marvin Prits, Cornell University
Richard Manshardt, University of Hawaii
Galen Peiser, Fresh Express, Chiquita

More mangoes!

APS President, Ed Stover, calls for more tropical fruit.

David Karp, Jules Janick, and the Stovers cut mangos for the masses.

Schuyler Korban, Robert Knight, and David Karp examine mangosteens.

Rob Crassweller cuts tropical fruits

Fred Gmitter and Guiwen Cheng wait for fruit samples.

David Karp opens a mangosteen for tasting

David Karp, hands a sample to Robert Knight, retired scientist from the USDA Miami Station

Dr. Lailong Cheng, Cornell University, hands mango samples to Kirk Pomper and Sheri Crabtree, Kentucky State University.

The 2008 Winner of the Wilder Medal, Dr. Jim Luby, University of Minnesota (L) looks on as long-term APS member, Dr. John Clark, enumerates Dr. Luby's many fruit breeding accomplishments.

